Welcome from the local organisers...

Dear participants
Welcome to the fourth European Conference on Politics and Gender! We are very honoured and happy to be hosting this exciting event. Gender and Politics is a prioritised and strong research area in the Department of Government at Uppsala University. We are therefore proud to be able to highlight it by hosting this exciting event.

Standing Group

Created in 1985, the Gender and Politics Group has over 750 members from all over the world.

The Group is a broad-based network of people interested in issues relating to the study of gender and sexuality in politics and world politics. It encourages workshops, panels and research groups with an emphasis on gender and seeks to increase the profile of women in political science.

Over the past twenty years, research conducted in this field has expanded significantly and the number of gender and politics scholars participating in the ECPR Joint Sessions and General Conferences has increased exponentially. In 2007, the Group decided to arrange a conference dedicated to this exciting field of research. The first-ever European Conference on Politics and Gender (ECPG) was held in Belfast on 13 – 15 January 2009, and was an enormous success: more than 300 scholars converged for three days of panels, plenaries and socialising. The aim at that time was to turn the new conference into a biennial international conference on gender and politics, and the Group’s second conference was held in Budapest, 13 – 15 January 2011, with an even bigger number of participants in attendance.

The third ECPG Conference took place at the University Pompeu Fabra Barcelona, 21 – 23 March 2013. A tremendous success, the conference featured 100 panels with more than 500 papers.

In 2013, the Standing Group created a Geneva-based charity to manage the ECPG conferences.

Uppsala University

The oldest seat of higher learning in the Nordic countries, Uppsala University’s 40,000 students enjoy a fantastic cultural environment and an enviable student life.

Uppsala University is characterised by diversity and breadth, with international frontline research at nine faculties and limitless educational offerings at undergraduate and master levels. The education pursued here benefits society and business on a global level.

Department of Government

Researching and educating students for nearly 400 years, the Department offers a thriving and internationally successful research environment. With 60 faculty members and 40 PhD students, it is recognised as one of the leading political science departments in the Nordic countries. Each year, the Department awards the prestigious Johan Skytte Prize in Political Science to an outstanding international scholar in the discipline.

The faculty covers all major fields of political science, with an objective to analyse the conditions for political power and the prerequisites for well-functioning democratic institutions. Members are frequently turned to by the media for expert analysis, asked to serve in public commissions, and engage in wider society in a variety of ways. Many graduates have gone on to have successful careers in leading public and private sector positions.

The Department is situated around the historic Skytteanum building in the heart of the city, part of Uppsala University’s Gamla torget or ‘Old Square’ Campus.

Gender and Politics Community

Research about gender and politics has grown strong and influential at the Department of Government in the past decade. It is now one of the largest and most vibrant subfields, involving around 15 researchers and doctoral students.

The gender and politics community has been successful in receiving grants and in publishing its work, and was picked as one of the most promising areas of research in a large evaluation of the Department. Research centres around issues of gendered representation and public policy, with an empirical focus ranging from case-studies of Sweden to global comparisons.

The city of Uppsala

Sweden’s fourth-largest city, with a population of 200,000, Uppsala retains its small-town charm while offering a big city’s selection of cultural treasures, shops and restaurants.

Today, Uppsala is a dynamic industrial and commercial city. Only 30 minutes to Stockholm-Arlanda international airport and 40 minutes to Stockholm, Uppsala has become an attractive conference location.

Among Uppsala’s most famous historical attractions are its cathedral, the largest in Scandinavia; Botaniska trädgården, one of Sweden’s oldest botanical gardens; Theatron Anatomicum in Gustavianum, a unique anatomical theatre built in the 1600s; the Linnaeus Garden; and Uppsala Castle (right), which dates from the mid 1500s.

Transport
Uppsala’s compact centre makes it easy to get around on foot – and you’re also within walking distance of pristine nature.
In this bicycle-friendly town, there are more bikes than inhabitants. Why not rent a bike and head out on the manicured bike paths?
To download a bike map, go to bit.ly/1P957hn and click on ‘Cykelkarta Uppsala tätort’. Alternatively you can get a map from Uppsala Tourist Centre. Call +46 18-10 50 40, email info@skitotal.se or stop by in person at Dragarbrunnsgatan 46A.
It’s easy to get around Uppsala by bus; see Upplands Lokaltrafik at www.ul.se or Trafik i Mälardalen at: www.timinfo.se

Shops and places to eat
You’ll find these on the streets around the University main building and campus. The main shopping area is around the main town square, Stora Torget, and in the shopping centres Sankt Pet, on the corner of St Persgatan and Svartbäcksgatan; and Forumgallerian, on Smedsgränd between St Persgatan and Svartbäcksgatan; and in the shopping centres Sankt Per, on the corner of Stora torget, and in the shopping

In 2009 she won this Standing Group's Gender and Politics Career Achievement Award. Joni’s two main research interests are political representation and how it affects the quality of democracy, and UK and EU equality policy. She is also interested in political recruitment and candidate selection; sex equality policy; equality machinery; gendering public policy; and gendered ceremony and ritual in parliament.

Published work includes Fostering Politics (2005), State Feminism and Political Representation (2005), The Harvard Report on Women at the Top (2005, with Sarah Childs and Rosie Campbell); Gender and Political Participation (2004, with Pippa Norris & Rosie Campbell); and Women and European Politics (1986).

Impact of the Crisis on Social Rights, Public Policy and Citizenship
Gamla torget, Room Svedelius
This Session looks at the Spanish research project Economic Crisis and Future of the Welfare State: Social Rights and Impact on Public Policies, Public Services Caringship (ARMELA + I/ULNEKRA) led by the Universities of Santiago de Compostela and Deusto. Gender perspective is a cornerstone of this project and the priority is to analyse the impact of the economic crisis on women (feminisation of social vulnerability and resilience) and equality policies. The project is looking for partners – Universities and/or researchers – to design an international comparative project and to participate in two European calls: Reversing inequalities and promoting fairness and/or Understanding Europe – promoting the European public and cultural space. The Spanish project and the two European calls (currently at draft stage) will be presented.
Organisers Alba Alonso, Arantxa Elizondo and Maria Silvestre

Measuring Women’s Impact in Political Processes
Gamla torget, Datorsalen
As a generalisation, women tend to be underrepresented in politics. Many advocates for the increased participation of women suggest that they bring different perspectives to policy-making. But these arguments – whether from existentialist or socialisation perspectives – are contested.
This discussion problematises the impact of women’s participation in political processes, focusing on methodological challenges in research. It will look at how different researchers assess the impact of women’s participation, in formal and informal political spheres, and ask: Could there better ways of doing this?
For anyone interested in assessment exercises, methodology or impact evaluation – qualitative, quantitative and mixed methodologies.
Organisers Rachel Irwin and Emma Bjértén-Günther

Business luncheons
Sponsored by the journal Politics, Groups and Identities (Taylor & Francis), luncheons take place Friday 12 June, 13:00 – 14:00.

Brainstorm common interests and plan collaborative projects...

Introducing Feminist and Institutional Perspectives
Gamla torget, Room 475
Interested in feminist institutionalism (FI)? Or just curious to know more about this approach – which combines insights from feminist analysis and institutionalist theory – to explain the dynamics of gendered power inequalities in public and political life?
FIIN (the Feminism and Institutionalism International Network) invites expressions of interest from FIIN members and from the wider gender and politics community – particularly early-career researchers.
Aims of the session are to:
- allow FIIN members to take stock, brainstorm and refine ideas for future joint projects
- reach out to the wider gender and politics community to introduce FI, and explore common interests
- plan the 10th anniversary of FIIN in 2016/17
- introduce a new Rowman & Littlefield International book series, Feminist and Institutionalist Perspectives, (co-edited by Fiona Mackay, Elin Bjarnegård and Meryl Kenny) and to identify potential contributors / projects.
Organisers Fiona Mackay, Meryl Kenny, Louise Chappell, Georgina Waylen, Mona Lena Krook, Elin Bjarnegård

Post-Structural Theorising, Feminist Analysis and Critical Policy Studies: Conversations and Collaborations
Gamla torget, Room 476
Are you pursuing research that draws on post-structural theory and feminist analysis, or are you considering it as a possibility?
Critical policy studies is being enriched by work that mobilises tools offered by post-structural theorising such as governmentality, biopolitics, assemblage and problematisation.
Post-structural approaches to research share with feminist analysis a broad understanding of politics and power as complex, multifaceted and exercised within and across diverse sites. But they often refuse the social justice commitments that inform feminist scholarship and/or work with different understandings of political agency and resistive practices.
Although a growing body of research is located at the intersection of these two approaches, there are few places where interested scholars can connect. This luncheon will facilitate more fluid and sustained conversation than is usually possible during conference panels. Join us to share information about your research / writing projects and plans, and to discuss potential collaborations.
Organisers Malin Rönnblom and Kathy Tettgsonian

Hard Times for Editing Feminist Journals and Book Series?
Gamla torget, Room 477
Publishing a feminist journal has always been a challenge. In the beginning the aim was not only to create a new forum for all academic and politically active women who work in the field of gender studies and who have been underrepresented in other journals but also to give publicity to ideas beyond the mainstream of political science.
These original motivations have been obviously successful regarding the present variety of journals dealing with gender aspects and/or providing feminist critique. But is everything fine? In the face of financial cuts, gender backlash and insecure academic careers, perhaps not.
This luncheon is for everybody interested in editorial work or who wants to get to know the people behind the journals. With editors from feminist journals of political science and gender studies we will discuss themes such as perspectives for developing editorial work, including Peer Review systems and Open Access. Other challenges include public debates on anti-feminism, and gender backlash.
The luncheon is organised by the German journal Feminis Polititica – Journal for Feminist Political Science see www.feminis-polititica.de
Organisers Gesine Fuchs and Alexandra Scheede

ECPG Gender and Politics Career Achievement Award

This year’s prize goes to Mieke Verloo, Professor of Comparative Politics and Inequality Issues at Radboud University Nijmegen, and she was Research Director for MAGEEQ (2003 – 2005) and QUING (2006 – 2013) projects there.

Breaking new ground
Mieke is a path-breaking thinker, challenging and advancing theory, methodologies, and empirical analyses. Her work on gender mainstreaming pointed at the mainstreaming potential for ‘displacement and empowerment’, while her reflections on intersectionality have challenged the EU’s one-size-fits-all approach to addressing inequalities, and continue to inspire scholars and activists across the world.

In 2011 her keynote lecture for the ECPG in Budapest was titled Gender Equality Policies as Interventions in a Changing World. Her 2012 Joint Sessions workshop in Antwerp, with Amy Mazur, was ‘Thinking big about Gender Equality Policies.

Mieke’s development of Critical Frame Analysis (see the books Multiple Meanings of Gender Equality Policies and The Discursive Politics of Gender Equality) has contributed hugely to the advancement of discursive methodologies, mobilising hundreds of researchers to employ CFA to make the meanings and norms of gender policies visible.

Influencing political life
Mieke has acted as consultant to many organisations that promote gender equality, and has trained politicians whose influence in the field is crucial. Her work in the Council of Europe and the EU has been influential in forming current views on gender mainstreaming and her ten-years-after evaluation (Social Politics) shows how much remains to be said on the subject.

Recent consultancy includes work for the Luxembourg government, the European Parliament and the European Commission. Mieke also worked for the European Training Foundation, EIGE, The European Institution for Gender Equality, and for UN-Women.

Paving the way for future generations
Mieke has opened many opportunities for young researchers, as Scientific Director of EU-funded projects F5P and F6P on gender equality policies: Mainstreaming Gender Equality Policies in Europe www.mageeq.net and Quality in Gender Equality Policies www.quing.eu.

Her qualities for leading research teams, with enthusiasm and wisdom, and her capacity to maintain ‘nice and smart’ researchers (her key criterion for being in the team!), are admirable.

Mieke has been a truly empowering research director, encouraging younger researchers to take on ambitious and innovative projects in which – besides reaching important conclusions – they can increase their self-confidence to become known researchers in their chosen field.

ECPG Gender and Politics PhD Prize

The ECPG is delighted to award the 2015 prize to Ana Miškovska Kajevska, for her dissertation Taking a stand in times of violent societal changes: Belgrade and Zagreb feminists’ positionings on the (post-)Yugoslav wars and each other (1991 – 2000).

In her own words...
‘My dissertation explores positionings (discourses and activities) of the Belgrade and Zagreb feminists vis-à-vis the (post-)Yugoslav wars and one another between 1991 and 2000.

Primarily applying a Bourdieuvian framework and based on a comprehensive literature review, semi-structured qualitative interviews, and a thorough examination of organisational documents and printed media articles, this socio-historical analysis attempts to address first of all the biases, lacunae and incorrect or insufficiently precise (recurring) information in the scholarship, thereby enriching existing knowledge on war-related feminist activism in Belgrade and Zagreb in the 1990s, and raising pressing epistemological questions about this knowledge.

In short, I challenge the common suggestion that the outbreak of the war violence in 1991 led to the same reorganisation of the Belgrade and Zagreb feminist fields: the activists in each city, who had worked together without tensions, divided into antinationalists and nationalists and began clashing because of their different war-related positionings.

I show that there were significant differences between Belgrade and Zagreb in the contents of those positionings and in the intra-feminist dynamics, due to which these two cities should not be considered interchangeable locations. Furthermore, I demonstrate that the designations ‘antinationalist’ and ‘nationalist’ were not completely value-free, objective descriptions. They were instead an essential part of the local and international efforts to stop the (sexual) war violence, and of the struggle for legitimacy among the feminists in each city – endeavours in which many Western (feminist) academics, activists, and funders were involved, too.’

Deeds and Words: Gendering Politics after Joni Lovenduski
Rosie Campbell & Sarah Childs (Eds)
What difference do feminist political scientists and politicians make to political institutions, policy processes and outcomes? Deeds and Words answers this question, covering gender and parties, elected institutions and the state; quotas and recruitment; public opinion, and women's interests. Vignettes by politicians including Dame Anne Begg, Baroness Gould and the Rt Hon Theresa May add first-hand insight. A fitting tribute to the pioneering political scientist Joni Lovenduski.
ISBN 9781907301520
230pp, August 2014

Gender, Conservatism and Political Representation
Karen Celis & Sarah Childs (Eds)
Can Conservatives represent women? Descriptively, they do. Conservative women sit in many of the world’s parliaments; women have led conservative parties; and there are, and have been, female conservative Prime Ministers. But do these women really stand for women, act for women and re-gender representation? Contributors to this collection address head-on the puzzle of right-wing women who engage in gendered political representation, but do so in a conservative setting.
ISBN 9781907301711
330pp, November 2014

Gendering Politics, Feminising Political Science
Joni Lovenduski
Before the 1980s, women were written out of much of European political science, largely wilfully, on the grounds that they had no separate or different political life from men. Joni Lovenduski attempted to change the perception that women were political minors, providing evidence of their attitudes and participation, and rethinking the discipline to accommodate gender relations. This collection, which attempts to correct that bias, includes new essays that reflect on what has changed over the years.

Why Aren’t They There? The Political Representation of Women, Ethnic Groups and Issue Positions in Legislatures
Didier Ruedin
A groundbreaking cross-national examination of how the representation of women, ethnic groups, issue positions are interlinked. Didier Ruedin examines aspects unattainable in studies that focus on a single form of representation, resulting a comprehensive understanding of political representation, and important, policy-relevant insights for electoral engineering.
ISBN 9780955820397

Gender and the Vote in Britain: Beyond the Gender Gap?
Rosie Campbell
The 2005 British general election saw unprecedented media interest in parties’ attempts to woo women voters, and there was much speculation about a fracturing relationship between women and Tony Blair. This analysis of British general elections 1992 – 2005 tests whether there were indeed gender differences in leadership evaluations, party of vote and political attitudes. Rosie Campbell examines interactions between sex, age, class, race, and education.

168pp, December 2006

Representing Women? Female Legislators in West European Parliaments
Mercedes Mateo Diaz
What affects women’s presence in parliaments? Does the number of women in parliament have an effect? And are women in parliament representing women? This book examines political representation in EU parliaments. Contrary to critical mass theory, which claims that a few representatives cannot have an impact on the political outcomes, Mateo Diaz’s research suggests that smaller groups can indeed influence legislative process.

Gender and Comparative Politics

Series Editors:
Karen Cels, Vrije Universiteit Brussel, Belgium
Isabelle Engeli, University of Ottawa, Canada

Philip Ayoub (Drexel University), Andrea Krizsan (Central Europe University), Emanuela Lombardo (Universidad Complutense de Madrid), Sabine Lang (University of Washington), Joni Lovenduski (Birkbeck College, University of London), Amy Mazur (Washington State University), Joyce Outshoorn (University of Leiden), Mieke Verloo (Radboud Universiteit Nijmegen).

The comparative research conducted in the field of gender and politics today is more than ever resulting in innovative theory building, applying novel research designs and engaging with mainstream political science. Gender & Politics has moved from the margins of political science to the center. Given the highly critical and activist roots of the gender and politics scholarship, it quasi naturally embraces intersectionality. The Routledge Gender and Comparative Politics Book Series aims to reflect this rich, critical and broad scholarship covering the main political science sub-disciplines with, for instance, gender focused research on political economy, civil society, citizenship, political participation and representation, governance and policy making.

To reflect the diversity in the field, the Book Series welcomes book proposals such as:
1. Research monographs that capture outstanding scholar contributions
2. Reference handbooks and companions for the research community as well as tailored-made textbooks for undergraduates and graduates students
3. Edited volumes which gather the growing participation in research networks and research-focused activities
4. Research Methods contributions in Comparative Gender Politics that will attract faculty, scholars and students alike.

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

We welcome proposals for this series! If you are interested in submitting a proposal please contact:

Politics, Groups, and Identities is an official journal of the Western Political Science Association.

It presents the best scholarship on social groups, exploring the politics of gender, race, ethnicity, religion, sexuality, class and other dimensions of identity and structural disadvantage. The journal publishes work across all subfields of political science, as well as the social sciences and humanities more generally. The journal publishes research on any country or region of the world, including work that is global or international in scope as well as work that is national or local, or examines connections between these levels.

Politics, Groups, and Identities:
- Welcomes qualitative and quantitative research
- Encourages the submission of theory pieces
- Offers quick turnaround time on manuscripts
- Invites you to suggest research symposia, review essays, and special issues

Authors can submit their paper to PGI by visiting bit.ly/SubmitToPGI
