

Innovative Management of Public Policies and Services. New Strategies to reduce Institutional Disaffection

Panel Chair:

Bernabé Aldeguer Cerdá, University of Alicante, bernabealdeguer@gmail.com

Abstract:

Research on the phenomenon of innovation in government and public administrations has increased substantially in recent years as a new theoretical reflection and practice aimed to promote processes of modernization and improvement in the management of public services and institutions (Altshuler and Behn, 1997, Osborne and Plastrik, 1997, Mulgan and Albury, 2003, Moran, 2004, Osborne and Brown, 2005, Hartley, 2006, Verhoest, Verschuere and Bouckaert, 2007, Harris and Albury, 2009, Maddock, 2009; Mulgan, 2009, Potts, 2009, Kohli and Mulgan, 2010, Moore and Hartley, 2010).

Moreover, is possible to find new conceptual and analytical frameworks that serve as a basis to understand the phenomenon of innovation, identify its main variables (under the logic of observing it as a systemic process) and define its elements or components, in order to configure and adapt a model of its own application to the nature, interests and particularities of the public sector (Borins, 2006, Eggers and Singh, 2009, Bloch, 2010, Bason, 2010, Hilgers and Piller, 2011, among others).

The purpose of the panel is to issue and catalog a set of papers related to several reflections and strategies on the contemporary role of innovation -public or institutional- in the generation of opportunities -organizational and cultural- in the adoption and implementation of public policies and public services management.

If you have a Paper you think might fit in this Panel, please contact the Panel Chair before 31 January with the following information:

- Title of the paper (no more than 20 words)
- Abstract of the paper (no more than 250 words)
- Author's (and if applicable co-author's) email address as registered in their MyECPR account
- 3 – 5 keywords