Politics and International Relations

AUTUMN/WINTER 2021

Welcome

This year Policy Press (PP) is celebrating 25 years since it was launched and Bristol University Press (BUP) is marking its fifth anniversary.

We publish pioneering scholarship and social commentary which aims to influence research, education, policy, practice and wider culture and thereby support social change.

Since the beginning, our mission has been to show the damage done to individuals and society by social problems and structural inequalities and how enlightened, evidence-based interventions can mediate this and positively change lives.

Social challenges, from the local to the global, have of course become greater and ever more urgent: as 2020 has showed us, we can no longer talk about social justice without focusing on racial, gender and environmental justice.

In this catalogue, we are delighted to present our new titles for Autumn and Winter 2021 and announce our new Open Access Global Social Challenges Journal (pages 4-5). Despite the challenges of the last 18 months, I hope that our work can help us to move closer to a society that is caring and compassionate to its people and planet, challenging injustice and discrimination in all its forms.

Welcome

Our Politics and International Relations list enables researchers to communicate with each other, with new generations of students and with a wider audience of thoughtful readers. It includes work from across the subdisciplines and reflects the variety of approaches and methods used in political analysis.

We seek to publish books that engage with today's global challenges and with political change at domestic and international levels. We particularly welcome work that is attentive to the dynamics of power and to otherwise marginalized voices and perspectives.

The Policy Press imprint publishes titles in politics that strongly argue a particular point of view or seek to make an intervention in the national political conversation.

Authoritarian Contagion

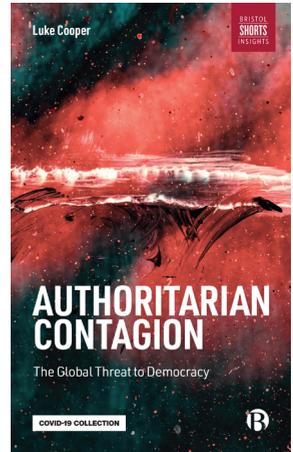

The Global Threat to Democracy

Luke Cooper, London School of Economics and Political Science

The 21st century has not seen the triumph of democracy that some predicted, but instead, in many cases, a turn towards authoritarian forms of government as an imagined solution to the many crises facing humanity.

This innovative and important book draws on examples from around the world to examine the spread of draconian and nationalistic forms of government: a lurch towards ‘authoritarian protectionism’ which observes a simple maxim, that ‘the world may end for others, but not for us’. While there is hope that the COVID-19 crisis could lead to a reinvigoration of democracy and a new economic agenda, there is also the risk of a further slide towards authoritarian rule and an urgent need for democratic renewal and change to combat this.

The novel conceptualization offered in this book will give readers a new and deeper insight into the changing nature of the authoritarian threat to democracy – and how it might be overcome.

Environmental Anarchy?

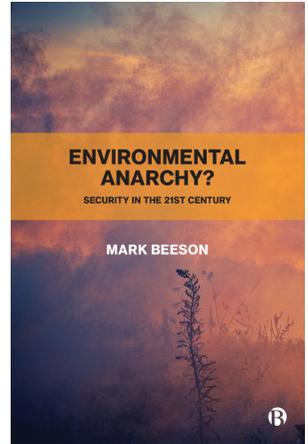

Security in the 21st Century

Mark Beeson, University of Western Australia

At a time when environmental crises and global pandemics pose interconnected existential threats to the very continuation of life, we urgently need to rethink our security priorities.

This book explains why insecurity has become such a ubiquitous feature of life in the 21st century and why policy makers, strategic analysts and many scholars are failing to recognise or address its underlying causes.

Beeson, a leading expert in international relations, analyses the forces creating the epidemic of insecurity that is currently sweeping the world and argues that power politics and militarism are not going to help us cure it.

Grand Strategy in 10 Words

A Guide to Great Power Politics in the 21st Century

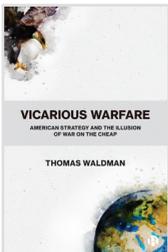

Sven Biscop, Royal Institute for International Relations in Brussels and Ghent University

"A leading European expert giving wise counsel to strategy makers on both sides of the Atlantic, for a community of values that has choppy waters behind it, likely to face further rough seas ahead. Strongly recommended empirically derived navigation aids for practitioners!"

BEATRICE HEUSER, UNIVERSITY OF GLASGOW

In a world that has returned to great power rivalry, understanding the grand strategy of these powers is crucial. This book introduces ten key terms for analyzing grand strategy and shows how the world's great powers shape their strategic decisions today. Outlining the steps needed for a less confrontational and more peaceful and stable world order, this lively introduction shows how the choices made will determine the course of world politics in the next half century.

Vicarious Warfare

American Strategy and the Illusion of War on the Cheap

Thomas Waldman, Macquarie University

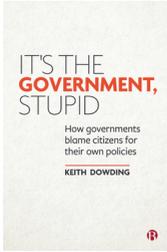

"This superb book convincingly demonstrates how arms-length interventions are rooted in an historical evolution of the American military tradition. It is essential reading for those who want to understand the implications of the rise of war-at-a-distance."

ANDREW MUMFORD, PROFESSOR OF WAR STUDIES, UNIVERSITY OF NOTTINGHAM

This compelling account charts the historical emergence of vicarious warfare and its contemporary prominence. It contrasts its tactical advantages with its hidden costs and potential to cause significant strategic harm.

It's the Government, Stupid

How Governments Blame Citizens for Their Own Policies

Keith Dowding, Australian National University

"Everyone – voters and politicians – should read this book."

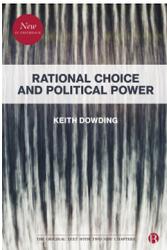

MATT MATRAVERS, UNIVERSITY OF YORK

"Throws down the gauntlet to political philosophers ... Timely and important."

MIRIAM BANKOVSKY, LA TROBE UNIVERSITY

Governments have developed a convenient habit of blaming social problems on their citizens, placing too much emphasis on personal responsibility and pursuing policies to 'nudge' their citizens to better behaviour. This book calls for a radical shift. It shows why responsibility for many social crises – including obesity, gun crime, homelessness, drug addiction and problem gambling – should be laid at the feet of politicians.

Rational Choice and Political Power

Keith Dowding, Australian National University

"One of the clearest, analytically rigorous and politically crisp accounts on power available."

ANDREW HINDMOOR, UNIVERSITY OF SHEFFIELD

Featuring a new Introduction and two new chapters in the Postscript, this new edition makes one of the most significant works on power of the last 30 years available in paperback for the first time. The author extensively engages with a body of new literature, including feminist accounts of power, to elucidate and expand upon the original work and consider contemporary debates. This book is essential for anyone teaching or studying power.

Mind, Action and Strategy in an Uncertain World

Karin M. Fierke, University of St Andrews

Taking a unique interdisciplinary approach, this book addresses a range of key theoretical debates in politics in order to advance the frontiers of International Relations (IR) theory.

The book bridges two important debates in the field: the case for the relevance of quantum theory to the social sciences and the pressing need for a more global IR. Drawing on key thinkers in political theory, the book examines parallels between quantum physics and ancient Asian traditions – Daoism and Buddhism – and explores their implications for mind, action and strategy in conditions of radical uncertainty. The conclusions drawn illustrate the value of interdisciplinary and global approaches in helping us better understand world politics.

The Responsibility to Provide in Southeast Asia Towards an Ethical Explanation

See Seng Tan, Nanyang Technological University

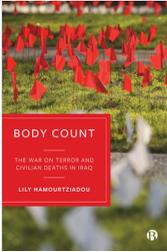

"Nuanced and thought-provoking."

LINDA QUAYLE, INDEPENDENT WRITER AND RESEARCHER

Innovative and theoretically rich, this original text argues that states in Southeast Asia have begun to display an increasing readiness to think about sovereignty in terms not only of state responsibility to their own populations, but also towards neighbouring countries. It explores what this means for the long-held and jealously guarded principle of non-intervention in the region, and for international relations more broadly.

Globalizing Regionalism and International Relations

Edited by Beatrix Futák-Campbell, Leiden University

Building on the recent global turn in the field of International Relations, this book provides an innovative interrogation of regionalism.

Applying a global framework, this book moves beyond the traditional conception of regionalism, which views regions as competing blocs dominated by great powers. Instead, it shows that regions are a dynamic configuration of social and political identities in which a variety of actors interact and partake in regional cooperation.

Fuelling Insecurity

Energy Securitization in Azerbaijan

Aurora Ganz, University of St Andrews

The politics of Azerbaijan, ‘the land of fire’, are materially and ideologically shaped by energy. This book examines the extensive network of security professionals and the wide range of practices that have spread in Azerbaijan’s energy sector.

It unpacks the interactions of state, supra-state and private security organisations and argues that energy security has enabled and normalised a coercive way of exercising power. This study shows that oppressive energy security practices lead to multiple forms of abuse and poor energy policies.

University

“A must-read.”

DIANA PANKE, ALBERT-LUDWIGS UNIVERSITY

International Organizations (IOs) are vital institutions in world politics in which cross-border issues can be discussed and global problems managed.

This path-breaking book shows the efforts that small states have made to participate more fully in IO activities. It draws attention to the challenges created by widened participation in IOs and develops an original model of the dilemmas that both IOs and small states face as the norms of sovereign equality and the right to develop coincide.

Ian Hall, Griffith University

"This is essential reading. Ian Hall brilliantly links the domestic imperatives driving current India foreign policy to the challenges India faces in a rapidly changing world."

KATHARINE ADENEY, UNIVERSITY OF NOTTINGHAM

After coming to power in 2014, Narendra Modi unexpectedly set out to reinvent Indian foreign policy to align it more closely with Hindu nationalist ideology. This book examines the intellectual underpinnings of this attempted reinvention, its motivations, and its impact on the Modi government's desire to make India a 'leading power' in international affairs.

India's First Diplomat

V. S. Srinivasa Sastri and the Making of Liberal Internationalism

Vineet Thakur, Leiden University

Though now largely a forgotten figure, V. S. Srinivasa Sastri was a celebrated Indian politician and diplomat in the early 20th century.

This book rehabilitates Sastri and offers a diplomatic biography of his years as India's roving ambassador in the 1920s. It examines his involvement in key conferences and agreements, as well as his achievements in advocating for racial equality and securing the rights of Indians both at home and abroad.

How to Achieve Defence Cooperation in Europe?

The Subregional Approach

Bence Nemeth, King's College London

This timely analysis of security in Europe identifies the factors that enable and hinder the creation of networks of defence cooperation across the continent.

Drawing on three central cases of defence cooperation and a range of other examples, the book develops an account of the structural and situational factors that influence cooperation and provides an instructive response to contentious questions about defence matters in Europe.

What is International Relations?

Knud Erik Jørgensen, Aarhus University

Knud Erik Jørgensen traces International Relations scholarship from its formative interwar years, through to rapid growth in students and researchers in the wake of globalisation.

He examines the resultant widening of scholarship in the field, and the effects that this has had on the global discipline. The result is a concise and challenging appraisal of International Relations, one which both celebrates its value and maps possible future directions.

Ideas and the Use of Force in American Foreign Policy

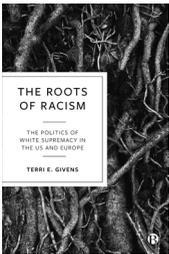

Presidential Decision-Making in a Post-Cold War World

Morgan T. Rees, Griffith University

Examining the post-Cold War period, this book sets out to explain why and when US presidents choose to use force.

It develops new explanations for variation in the use of force in US foreign policy by theorizing and demonstrating the effects of the displacement and repression of ideas within and across different US presidential administrations, from George H. W. Bush to Donald Trump.

The Roots of Racism

The Politics of White Supremacy in the US and Europe

Terri E. Givens, McGill University and Center for Higher Education

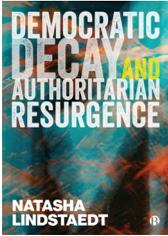

“In this important, timely and much needed comparative analysis, Terri Givens successfully brings together the personal, professional and political, and the different forms of racism and white supremacy in the US and Europe.”

AARON WINTER, UNIVERSITY OF EAST LONDON

This important book examines the past, present and future of racist ideas and politics, showing how policies have developed over a long history of European and White American dominance of political institutions and policies that maintain White supremacy. Givens examines the rise of anti-immigrant, radical-right parties in Europe, the rise of Trumpism in the US and the Brexit vote in the UK. This book provides a vital springboard for people, organisations and politicians who want to dismantle structural racism and discrimination.

Democratic Decay and Authoritarian Resurgence

Natasha Lindstaedt, University of Essex

"This is an essential read for all students of politics interested in the future of democracy."

ANJA NEUNDORF, UNIVERSITY OF GLASGOW

This book introduces students to the concept and causes of democratic decay in the modern world. Illustrating the integral link between public commitment to democratic norms and the maintenance of healthy democracies, it examines the key factors in decaying democracies, including:

- Economic inequality;
- Corruption;
- Populist and authoritarian discourse;
- Declining belief in political institutions and processes.

The Human Costs of Europe's
Common Labour Market

Jonathon W. Moses, Norwegian University of Science and Technology (NTNU)

The drive to create a common market in Europe has proceeded without much thought given to the particular needs of workers. This book examines the process of market integration in Europe to show how it has undermined the power and influence of European workers, and results in a market that generates significant human costs. Starting from the position of labour, this book offers an alternative approach to labour market integration in Europe which tries to balance the needs of justice and efficiency, to the benefit of workers.

Ecological Justice and the Extinction Crisis

Giving Living Beings their Due

Anna Wienhues, University of Zurich

"A courageous and carefully crafted defence of the concept of ecological justice."

ALAN HOLLAND, LANCASTER UNIVERSITY

As the biodiversity crisis deepens, Anna Wienhues sets out radical environmental thinking and action to respond to the threat of mass species extinction. The book conceptualises large-scale injustice endangering non-humans, and signposts new approaches to the conservation of a shared planet, building towards a bold vision of just conservation.

Environmental Conflicts, Migration and Governance

Edited by Tim Krieger, Diana Panke and Michael Pregernig, University of Freiburg

"A major contribution to debates on climate change, resources, conflicts and migrations."

PHILIPPE LE BILLON, UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

Migration flows have led to new governance challenges and, at times, populist political backlashes. A key driver of migration is environmental conflict, and this is only likely to increase as we experience the effects of climate change. Bringing together world leading researchers from across political science, environmental studies, economics and sociology, this book provides invaluable insights into one of the most pressing global issues of our time. It uses a multifaceted theoretical and methodological approach to address core challenges around migration, climate change and conflict, and proposes solutions for the future.

Women's Activism Behind the Screens

Trade Unions and Gender Inequality in the British Film and Television Industries

Frances C. Galt, Newcastle University

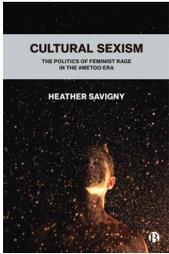

"This book is vital, not only for historians, but for all of us who fight for change now."

SHELLEY COBB, UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHAMPTON

Frances C. Galt explores the role of trade unions and women's activism in the British film and television industries in this important contribution to debates around gender inequality. The book traces the influence of the union for technicians and other behind-the-camera workers and examines the relationship between gender and class in the labour movement.

Cultural Sexism

The Politics of Feminist Rage in the #MeToo Era

Heather Savigny, Independent Feminist Scholar

“A powerful contextualization of the barriers to change, doing justice to our feminist legacies, while operationalizing the core ground of political, social and media theory. Savigny gives us the clarity and vision to ‘rage, reverse and repoliticise’. All men should read this ... it is time to get onboard.”

HELEN WOOD, UNIVERSITY OF LANCASTER

Heather Savigny highlights four key traits of cultural sexism – violence, silencing, meritocracy and masculinity – prevalent across the media, entertainment and cultural industries that keep sexist values firmly within popular consciousness. She traces the development of key feminist thinkers before demonstrating how the normalisation of misogyny perpetuates patriarchal values within our everyday social and cultural landscape. She argues that we need to understand why #MeToo was necessary in order to bring about meaningful change.

Women, Media, and Elections

Representation and Marginalization in British Politics

Emily Harmer, University of Liverpool

In the century since women were first eligible to stand and vote in British general elections, they have relied on news media to represent their political perspectives in the public realm.

This book provides a systematic analysis of electoral coverage by charting how women candidates, voters, spouses and party leaders have been portrayed in newspapers since 1918. The result is a fascinating account of both continuity and change in the position of women in British politics.

Beyond Pro-life and Pro-choice

The Changing Politics of Abortion in Britain

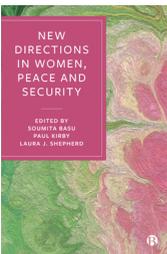

Fran Amery, University of Bath

"A sophisticated account of the intricacies of the abortion debate for both students of Politics and Gender Studies and practitioners."

SARAH COOPER, UNIVERSITY OF EXETER

This book makes sense of today's changed landscape of abortion debate by tracing the evolution of political and parliamentary discourse on abortion from the passage of the Abortion Act in the 1960s to the present day. It argues that to understand the changing pluralities of the abortion debate it is necessary to move beyond 'pro choice' versus 'pro life'.

New Directions in Women, Peace and Security

Edited by Soumita Basu, South Asian University, Paul C. Kirby, London School of Economics and Political Science and Laura J. Shepherd, University of Sydney

"This remarkable collection is testament to the resilience, inventiveness and tenacious optimism of feminist peace advocates."

DIANNE OTTO, UNIVERSITY OF MELBOURNE

This groundbreaking international collection engages vexed and vexing questions about the future of the Women, Peace and Security agenda, from the legacies of coloniality to the prospects of international law, and from the implications of the global arms trade to the impact of climate change. The collection balances analysis of emerging trends with specially commissioned reflections from those at the forefront of policy and practice.

The New Technocracy

Anders Esmark, University of Copenhagen

"This book is the perfect place to start trying to understand the significance of technocracy in the contemporary era."

CHRISTOPHER BICKERTON, UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE

This book provides the first comprehensive analysis of the current technocratic regime which the author argues emerged in the 1980s as a new 'post industrial' form of technocracy. Populism, Esmark argues, is a sign that the technocratic bluff has finally been called and that technocracy posing as democracy will only serve to exasperate existing problems. This book sets a new benchmark for studies of technocracy, showing that a solution to the challenge of populism will depend as much on a technocratic retreat as democratic innovation.

Social Innovation

How Societies Find the Power to Change

Geoff Mulgan, University College London

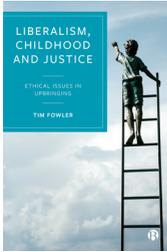

"A bold, inspiring book."

KRISS DEIGLMEIER, CEO TIDES

Geoff Mulgan, a pioneer in the global field of social innovation – the deliberate invention of new solutions to meet social needs – explains how it provides answers to the most pressing global social, economic and sustainability problems. Building on his experience as a social entrepreneur, policy maker, funder and adviser to governments, businesses and foundations, he argues for matching research and development in technology and science with a socially focused research and development and for harnessing creative imagination on a larger scale than ever before.

Liberalism, Childhood and Justice

Ethical Issues in Upbringing

Tim Fowler, University of Bristol

"A pleasure to read, this book is terrific."

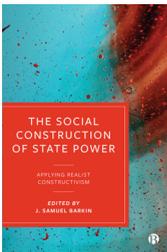

HARRY BRIGHOUSE, UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-MADISON

Through the lens of political philosophy, this radical and critical account of family justice explores children's wellbeing and ethical issues in children's upbringing.

Fowler reconceptualises what constitutes children's wellbeing, the duties of parents to promote children's wellbeing and the collective obligations of state and society to ensure that children's best interests are advanced and protected.

The Social Construction of State Power

Applying Realist Constructivism

Edited by J. Samuel Barkin, University of Massachusetts

"Intellectually rigorous, theoretically insightful, and creatively well-balanced."

JENNIFER STERLING-FOLKER, UNIVERSITY OF CONNECTICUT

Realism and constructivism are often viewed as competing paradigms for understanding International Relations, but a number of scholars are now arguing that the two are compatible. This volume, edited by one of the leading proponents of realist constructivism, combines both exposition and critique of realist constructivist approaches with a series of international case studies to show what realist constructivist research can look like in practice.

Whose Government Is It?

The Renewal of State–Citizen Cooperation

Edited by Henry Tam, University of Cambridge

“Packed with insights for citizens and officials alike.”

PETER LEVINE, TUFTS UNIVERSITY

Bringing together leading figures in democratic reform and civic engagement, this book shows why and how better state–citizen cooperation is needed to improve democracy and public service. It explains why the problem of civic disengagement poses a major threat and shows how obstacles to democratic cooperation between citizens and state institutions can be overcome.

The Gilets Jaunes and the New Social Contract

Charles Develennes, University of Kent

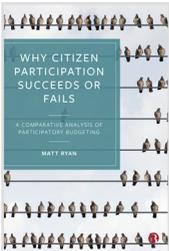

"Illuminates both our modern condition and the theoretical tradition that has shaped our time."

JAMES MARTEL, SAN FRANCISCO STATE UNIVERSITY

Providing a lively account of the gilets jaunes, the yellow vest movement in France, Develennes assesses what lessons can be drawn from their activities and the impact for the contemporary relationship between state and citizen. He proposes a new relationship between the state and the individual and establishes the necessity of rethinking the modern democratic nature of our representative polities.

Why Citizen Participation Succeeds or Fails

A Comparative Analysis of Participatory Budgeting

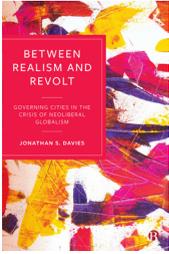

Matt Ryan, University of Southampton

This comparative review of participatory budgeting, or collective decisions on spending and taxation, reveals the factors behind its success worldwide.

Matt Ryan builds on ten years of research to show why, when and how citizens achieve control over these decisions. With examples of both positive change and notable failure, the book provides persuasive evidence and guidance for deepening democratic engagement.

Between Realism and Revolt

Governing Cities in the Crisis of Neoliberal Globalism

Jonathan S. Davies, De Montfort University

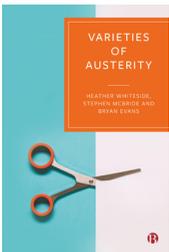

"Indispensable for urban scholars and practitioners alike!"

MARGIT MAYER, CENTER FOR METROPOLITAN STUDIES BERLIN

In this book, a leading governance theorist develops a comparative analysis of austerity governance and resistance in eight cities and establishes a conjunctural perspective on the rolling crises of neoliberal globalism.

Employing Gramscian regime analysis, Davies explores how urban governance shapes variations in austere neoliberalism, tackling themes including collaboration, dominance, resistance and counter-hegemony.

Varieties of Austerity

Heather Whiteside, University of Waterloo,
Stephen McBride, McMaster University and
Bryan Evans, Ryerson University

Austerity is not always one-size-fits-all; it can be a flexible, class-based strategy taking several different forms. This important book identifies continuity and variety in crisis-driven austerity restructuring across Canada, Denmark, Ireland and Spain. It uncovers how austerity can be categorized into different dynamic types, and exposes the economic, social and political implications of the varieties of austerity.

Identity in the Shadow of a Giant

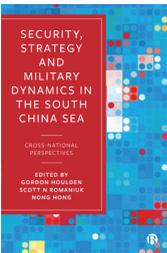

How the Rise of China is Changing Taiwan

Scott Sigmund Gartner, Pennsylvania State University, Chin-Hao Huang, Yale-NUS College, Yitan Li, Seattle University and Patrick James, University of Southern California

Co-authored by four International Relations scholars, this book investigates the implications of the global ascent of China on cross-Strait relations and the identity of Taiwan as a democratic state.

Their assessment offers valuable insights into which policies have the best chance of resulting in peaceful relations and prosperity across the Taiwan Strait and builds to a new theory of identity at elite and mass levels.

Parliamentary Diplomacy of Taiwan in Comparative Perspective

Against Isolation and Under-representation

Zlatko Šabič, University of Ljubljana and
David W. F. Huang, Academia Sinica

Parliamentary diplomacy has provided a crucial, promising outlet in Taiwan's challenging pursuit of its own interests in the international arena.

Through a comparative perspective, and using evidence from the relations of the Legislative Yuan in Taiwan with the US Congress and the European Parliament, this book investigates the implementation of parliamentary diplomacy in Taiwan and the impact of this form of diplomacy on Taiwan's foreign policy.

Is Europe Good for You?

EU Spending and Well-Being

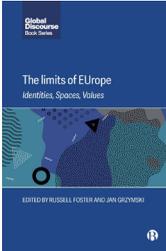

Lisa Maria Dellmuth, Stockholm University

This valuable book investigates how the European Union (EU) can use its regional funding programmes in ways that increase citizen wellbeing. It demonstrates that while EU social investments improve labour market performance in rich regions, they exacerbate income inequality in poor regions. Based on this insight, it presents a theory on the conditions under which EU funding will enhance prosperity.

She investigates the principles, rationales and shifting dynamics of collaboration on a range of security issues, and their consequences for China, the EU and other regions. She pays particular attention to EU–China relations in the realm of anti-terrorism, anti-piracy and energy security, and disentangles their cooperation efforts in the context of increasing political and economic tensions.

New Developments in Urban Governance

Rethinking Collaboration in the Age of Austerity

Jonathan S. Davies, De Montfort University et al.

Presenting the findings of a major European Social Research Council (ESRC) project into urban austerity governance in eight cities across the world, this book offers comparative reflections on the myriad experiences of collaborative governance and its limitations.

With international contributors from across the social sciences, the book discusses ways that citizens, activists and local states collaborate and come into conflict in attempting to build just cities.

Flexible Europe

Differentiated Integration, Fairness, and Democracy

Richard Bellamy, University College London,
Sandra Kröger and Marta Lorimer,
University of Exeter

The European Union (EU) is often portrayed as sacrificing national diversity for European unity. This book explores the alternative of a flexible EU based on differentiated rather than uniform integration.

The authors combine normative theory with empirical research on political party actors to assess the desirability and political acceptability of differentiated integration as a means of accommodating heterogeneity in the EU. They examine the circumstances and institutional design needed for flexibility to promote rather than undermine fairness and democracy within and between member states.

A Public Health Emergency of International Concern

Between International Law and Politics

Mark Eccleston-Turner, Keele University and Clare Wenham, London School of Economics and Political Science

As a formal declaration by the World Health Organization, a Public Health Emergency of International Concern (PHEIC) is governed by clear legislation as to what is, and what is not, deemed a global health security threat.

Addressing multiple empirical case studies, including COVID-19, this multidisciplinary book explores the relationship between international law and international relations to interrogate how a PHEIC is declared and its role in how we collectively respond to outbreaks.

The Future of Social Democracy

Essays to Mark the 40th Anniversary of the Limehouse Declaration

Edited by Colin McDougall, and George Kendall, Social Democrat Group, Liberal Democrats and Wendy Chamberlain, MP for North East Fife

"This book addresses vital questions which go to the heart of how we build a fairer, greener and more caring society."

SIR ED DAVEY MP, LEADER OF THE LIBERAL DEMOCRATS

"The current crisis is also forcing social democrats to come up with new or reworked policy ideas to tackle new problems or old problems in a new guise."

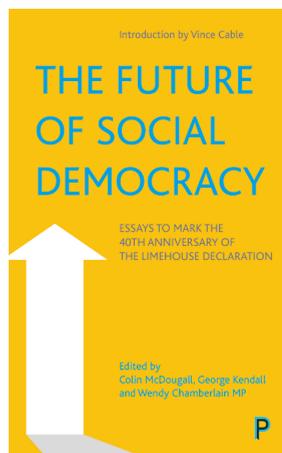

SIR VINCE CABLE

"Social Democrats ... need to demonstrate to voters that they understand the future that is emerging, that they are thinking deeply about how to handle it, and that they have answers."

IAN KEARNS, SOCIAL LIBERAL FORUM

2021 marks the 40th anniversary of the Limehouse Declaration and the launch of the Social Democratic Party in the UK, which was later to merge and form the Liberal Democrats. To mark this important milestone, this book brings together prominent politicians from across the spectrum of social democracy to reflect on its history and the challenges it faces in the coming decades.

With an introduction by Sir Vince Cable describing the current state of social democracy across the world, leading figures including Sarah Olney, Roger Liddle and Chris Huhne explore a wide range of contentious policy areas such as the economy, housing and globalisation. Together, they set out a vision for the country and for the Liberal Democrats that has social justice at its core.

Outsourcing in the UK

Policies, Practices and Outcomes

Janice Morphet, University College London

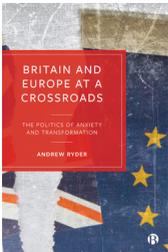

"An authoritative and first class account."

JOHN CONNOLLY, UNIVERSITY OF THE WEST OF SCOTLAND

In this comprehensive account, Janice Morphet analyses the role and use of outsourcing within the UK public sector since the mid-1970s.

By investigating the way that outsourcing has been used in different service sectors and across scales, the book illustrates the impact it has had on ideology, policy narratives and public expectations in the present.

Britain and Europe at a Crossroads

The Politics of Anxiety and Transformation

Andrew Ryder, Corvinus University of Budapest

"In a time of anxiety, change and frustration around Brexit, this book offers a salve in the form of an explanation on how we got here."

JO RICHARDSON, DE MONTFORT UNIVERSITY

Developing the conceptual framework of securitisation, Ryder examines the social, cultural and political factors which influenced the UK to take its decision to leave the European Union and the aftermath of this decision. He analyzes rhetoric to make sense of the events around Brexit and examines the responses of the main political groupings to provide an analysis of possible futures for British and European politics.

The Battle of Ideas in the Labour Party

From Attlee to Corbyn and Brexit

Dimitri Batrouni, University of Bristol

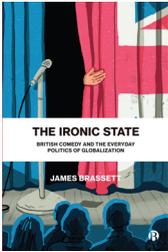

"A fascinating book."

TIM BALE, QUEEN MARY UNIVERSITY OF LONDON

Batrouni provides a lively account of the ideological developments and dramas in the Labour Party in recent decades, delving into the totemic battles between hard and soft left and examining the destructive and creative elements in key periods. Providing powerful insights from interviews with some of the most influential thinkers, advisors and MPs in the party, it is essential reading for understanding the Corbyn era and its aftermath.

The Ironic State

British Comedy and the Everyday Politics of Globalization

James Brassett, University of Warwick

"A fascinating perspective on how British comedy is integrated into our lived experience of globalised culture... A timely and thoughtful study on the politics of comedy."

JANE ARTHURS, CO-AUTHOR OF RUSSELL BRAND: COMEDY, CELEBRITY, POLITICS

What can comedy tell us about the politics of a nation? This book demonstrates how British comedy can provide intimate and vital understandings of the everyday politics of globalization in Britain. Touching on issues such as empire, the class system and capitalism, the author reveals how comedy offers valuable insights into how global market life is experienced, mediated, contested and accommodated.

Who Enters Politics and Why?

Basic Human Values in the UK Parliament

James Weinberg, University of Sheffield

"Has important implications for the future of democracy."

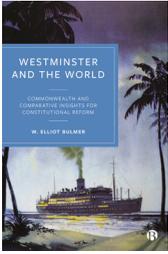

JACK CORBETT, UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHAMPTON

Exploring unique survey and interview data on the personality characteristics of British politicians, this book provides a timely psychological analysis of those individuals who pursue political careers and how they represent their constituents once elected.

Taking a fresh psychological approach to issues that are predominant in political science, this book casts new light on the human side of representative democracy.

The Political Formulation of Policy Solutions

Arguments, Arenas and Coalitions

Edited by Philippe Zittoun, University of Lyon,
Frank Fischer, Humboldt University of Berlin
and Nikolaos Zahariadis, Rhodes College

In this book, an international group of public policy scholars revisit the stage of formulating policy solutions by investigating the basic political dimensions inherent to this critical phase of the policy process.

The book focuses attention on how policy makers craft their policy proposals, match them with public problems, debate their feasibility to build coalitions and dispute their acceptability as serious contenders for government consideration.

Putting Civil Society in Its Place

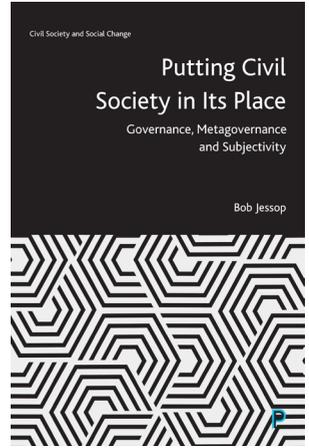

Governance, Metagovernance and Subjectivity

Bob Jessop, Lancaster University

"Rich in theoretical depth and interdisciplinary reflection, this is a rare book indeed."

MARTIN JONES, STAFFORDSHIRE UNIVERSITY

Renowned social and political theorist Bob Jessop explores the idea of civil society as a mode of governance in this bold challenge to current thinking. Setting out theories of metagovernance and the limits and failures of various styles of governance, he draws on case studies of mobilisations against economic and social problems to lay out lessons for future innovation in civil society.

Global Social Challenges Journal

NON-PROFIT, OPEN ACCESS
PUBLISHING FOR CHANGE

Bristol University Press is delighted to announce its first fully open access journal.

"I'm proud to see Bristol University Press launching this important new journal, which promises to address the most urgent complexities of global social challenges by drawing together accessible international scholarship across the disciplines to inform policy and practice."

PROFESSOR JUDITH SQUIRES, DEPUTY VICE-CHANCELLOR AND PROVOST, UNIVERSITY OF BRISTOL

How can we reimagine society in an era of climate change, pandemic, hunger, poverty, questions of racial, ethnic and gender justice and other pressing global societal challenges? Significant threats and dangers lie ahead of us, but so do opportunities, as new ways of being, thinking and doing emerge. This new, fully open access journal aims to facilitate thinking about these positive new trajectories and to become the journal of choice to address the complexities of global social challenges across disciplines and fields.

It will be the first such journal to be based in the social sciences while also engaging with research from humanities, arts and STEM. Including marginalised, minority and indigenous world views, the journal will be an important home for research that contributes to the creation of alternative futures that acknowledge past injustices and are socially and environmentally just and sustaining.

Policy & Politics is a world-leading journal that provides the primary outlet for scholars and reflexive practitioners to engage with the most pressing governance challenges inhibiting the continued advancement in the study of public policy and its practice. These challenges span the globe and link communities in a common struggle to realise and sustain human dignity and quality of life for all.

Policy & Politics serves scholars seeking an outlet that accepts these challenges and strives to overcome them. Three principles guide the journal: (1) comprehensive coverage of public policy, politics and social issues; (2) inclusivity in research approaches; and (3) relevance for science and practice.

 Volume 12 | 2022, 4 issues

Editor: Matthew Johnson, Lancaster University, UK

Deputy Editors: Shannon Brincat, University of the Sunshine Coast, Australia and Simon Mabon, Lancaster University, UK

North American Consultative Editor: Debra L. DeLaet, Drake University, US

"In the future the most transformative research and scholarship is likely to occur at the nexus or intersection between traditional disciplines and professional boundaries. Global Discourse is arguably the world-leading journal for provoking debates, connecting scholars and redefining how critical social challenges are framed and understood. It is a journal that is shaping the future rather than being stuck in the past."

MATTHEW FLINDERS IS PROFESSOR OF POLITICS AT THE UNIVERSITY OF SHEFFIELD, UK AND VICE-PRESIDENT OF THE POLITICAL STUDIES ASSOCIATION, UK.

Global Discourse is an interdisciplinary, problem-oriented journal of applied contemporary thought operating at the intersection of politics, international relations, sociology and social policy. The Journal's scope is broad, encouraging interrogation of current affairs with regard to core questions of distributive justice, wellbeing, cultural diversity, autonomy, sovereignty, security and recognition.

All issues are themed and aimed at addressing pressing issues as they emerge. Rejecting the notion that publication is the final stage in the research process, Global Discourse seeks to foster discussion and debate between often artificially isolated disciplines and paradigms, with responses to articles encouraged and conversations continued across issues.

Our digital monograph collections are available through Policy Press Scholarship Online (PPSO) in partnership with Oxford University Press, and will be launching in Cambridge Core and Project Muse in Spring 2021.

Our etextbooks are available to buy through Kortext, VitalSource and Perlego. Individual eBooks are also available from online bookshops including Amazon Kindle, Google Play, Kobo and eBooks.com.

You can purchase eBooks (ePUB) directly from us at bristoluniversitypress.co.uk. If you buy an ePub on our website, you will need to read it using Adobe Digital Editions (ADE) reader software as our eBooks are DRM-protected. To download ADE on your computer, go here.

See here for further information.
